Timber Gates

The Oxley range of timber gates is something special. The gates are hand-built to order and to our exacting standards and use only high grade hardwoods.

Available in a variety of hardwoods including oak, iroko and mahogany, gates are triple coated in stain prior to installation. Choose from one of our standard range of gates or we can manufacture to your own design.

Timber gates must be extremely well manufactured to withstand the stresses imposed by automation. Oxley's gates are made with automation in mind and have a minimum finished thickness of 65mm for stability and durability.

Gates can be hinged in pairs or sliding and are available with remote control automation and a range of options (see page 10-11).

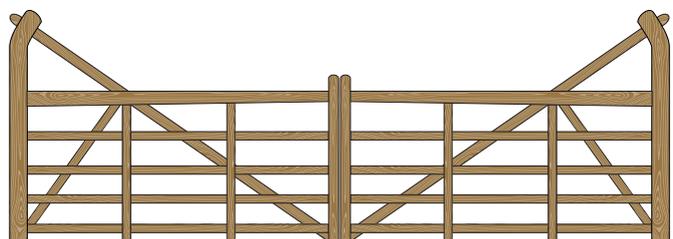

The designs shown here are the most popular designs, each of which can be customised to suit your home. Bespoke designs are no problem too - talk to us about your ideas and we'll make them a beautiful reality!

Detailing

Every gate has beautiful detailing and we have a choice of classic elements that can be incorporated - talk to us about your preferences. See page 9 for more information.

Oxley makes its gates, which gives total control over the design and finish - we use a hot dip galvanize process to ensure gates are fully corrosion protected. Our standard finish is satin black.

Choose your automation

To configure the right automation drive and control package you can rely on our expertise. Who needs access and when? How do you want to control access and practical considerations such as receiving mail? We will tailor your individual requirements regarding access to provide the ideal solution for access to your property.

Ram Operator

The electromechanical ram operators are an extremely cost effective method of gate automation and ideal where the gates are hung on posts, or close to the edge of the pillars. For security purposes the rams are non-reversible and do not require the expense of an additional electric lock to keep them closed.

Underground Operator

The motor mechanics are concealed within a secure galvanised steel underground foundation box so as not to spoil the aesthetics of your gates; all that can be seen is the steel lid covering the operating box. As the motors are contained underground, environmental noise intrusion is minimal.

Sliding Operator

The sliding gate motor is also a popular choice, and can be installed to either wrought iron or solid timber gates. A sliding gate can be used where a rising drive up towards the house would prevent swing gates from opening, or where there is limited parking space and intrusion of a swing gate would reduce any potential parking space.

GSM intercom & receiver

This smart device uses mobile phone technology to call your mobile when the intercom is pressed and allow you to talk to the visitor and open the gate by pressing * on the phone.

The receiver function also allows you to open the gate simply by calling the gate from your phone. When the gate is rung, the receiver checks to see if the incoming call is from a programmed telephone number. If it is, the gate is opened and the call is cancelled. Because the call is never answered there is no charge. A sim card is required.

A receiver-only version is also available if you do not require the intercom function but would like to open your gate from your phone - smart and effortless!

Letter boxes

Decorative cast aluminium back and front, metal box galvanised and powdercoated black. Rear lockable access panel. Designed to be installed into a gate or wall. Available with house name or number.

Wireless audio or video intercoms

Allow you to speak to callers and control your gate from inside your home via a cordless phone.

Transmitters

Are available as a multi-button that can also be linked into your garage doors.

Side entrance gates

Can be made to match with the main entrance gates for entry on foot without opening the main gates.

Induction loop

A coil of wire embedded into your drive surface detects vehicles as they pass over. It saves you from having to open your gate for visitors to leave. It can also be connected to a time clock to stop it working during hours of darkness and other selected times.

“A word about warranty & after sales service”

At Oxley's we are passionate about aftercare. We understand the purchase of a new gate is a significant investment and our dedicated personnel will ensure you get the best available service.

Our attention to detail has given us a reputation in Yorkshire and Lincolnshire to be the number one choice for gate installations.

As with all mechanical products, they will need servicing and repairing. All work should be carried out by professional engineers.

We recommend a twelve month service plan. This will both prolong the life of your gate and also keep up with the manufactures warranty.

All our products are covered by manufacturers warranty and terms and conditions will be supplied with your quote. We endeavour to ensure all warranty issues are dealt with both fairly and swiftly - your satisfaction is important to Oxley.
